Dispatches From Sofia Declare Nazi Minister Has Informed Athens Leaders That, With Signing of New Nonaggression Pact, Country is Now Open to Attack; Steps Believed Taken to Convince Premier That it Would be Wise to Make a Quick Peace With Mussolini

MORE THAN 300,000 TURKISH SOLDIERS ARE EXPECTED TO WITHDRAW FROM THE BORDER

By The Associated Press

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 18—(AP)—Germany, armed with what observers interpreted as a virtual promise by Turkey to stay within her own frontiers in the event Nazi troops march through Bulgaria, was reported in informed diplomatic quarters today to have taken steps to convince Greece it would be wise to make quick peace with Italy.

Such a peace, these circles indicated, would have to be on Premier Mussolini's terms.

It was reported here the German minister to Athens told Greek leaders after the announcement of the new Turkish-Bulgarian nonaggression pact yesterday that Greece is open to attack through Bulgaria.

He was understood to have made clear that the Reich would prefer to see Greece and Italy settle their fight quickly around a peace table.

The implication was understood to be that if Greece failed to comply, Adolf Hitler's Balkan army would start rolling southward from its bases in Rumania, crossing Bulgaria and entering eastern Thrace, so that the Greeks could not continue their battle in Albania.

Many diplomats here said they felt announcement of the pact might lessen the possibility that the Germans actually would move through Bulgaria. They said they believed the Greeks probably would accept Axis terms for a peace, now that hope of aid from Turkey has dwindled, rather than face the armies of both Italy and Germany.

The authoritative Sofia newspaper Zora said Germany and Soviet Russia had agreed on the Bulgarian-Turkish pact as a means of preventing the spread of war in the eastern Balkans.

Some British quarters said London had been informed by Turkey before the pact was announced. Other sources close to the British and Turkish governments indicated London did not learn of the agreement until yesterday. (In London, British said they had given their blessing to the negotiations.)

British minister George Rendel declared Britain had "no intention whatever of taking any initiative leading to violation of Bulgarian neutrality or dragging Bulgaria into the war."

It was reported here that Bulgaria and Turkey would start today withdrawal of troops massed along their common frontier.

More than 300,000 Turkish soldiers have been concentrated in recent weeks in European Turkey, across from Bulgaria, and Bulgaria recently reinforced her frontier with the first army corps from Sofia.

Reports that Bulgaria and Yugoslavia might sign an accord similar to the Bulgarian-Turkish agreement were discounted here. It was pointed out the two Slav nations already have a treaty of "perpetual" friendship and nonaggression.

Reports here indicated Adolf Hitler was assured at his meeting last week with Yugoslav leaders that Yugoslavia would not interfere with a German move into Greece through Bulgaria.

(German government circles in Berlin indicated last night they considered the new treaty a feather in the Reich's cap. "This move," a German spokesman said, "can

Senator Haluska Charges Dorazio With Taking Dive

Harrisburg, Feb. 18—(AP)—Senator John J. Haluska (D-Cambria) said on the senate floor today that the Joe Louis-Gus Dorazio fight at Philadelphia last night "was a disgrace."

"This man Dorazio took a perfect dive," Haluska declared. "I spent 10 years in the ring myself and when I speak of dives, I know what I'm talking about."

Senator Haluska was one of a delegation of senators who attended the fight as guests of Senator H. Jerome Jaspan (D-Phila), who has a resolution pending to investigate the State Athletic Commission. Others in the party were Senators Joseph M. Barr and Edward Frey, Allegheny county Democrats.

At Philadelphia, Chairman Leon L. Rains of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission declared:

"Haluska's statements are too ridiculous to answer," but he added that Dr. W. P. G. Terry, commission physician, reported to him that Dorazio was "so completely knocked out that he had a hard time bringing him around. There were 60 experts there—newspapermen from all over the country—and not one of them would say Dorazio took a dive."

The senate judiciary general committee called a meeting for this afternoon to consider the move for an investigation. The resolution asserted among other things that Dorazio was no match for Louis.

CLARION SLAYER FAILS IN EFFORT TO KILL HIMSELF

Clation, Feb. 18—(AP)—Indicted 10 hours after attempting to end his own life, Frank Leroy Derolph will face trial next May on charges of murdering Reuben L. Wentling, his uncle, and Wentling's 12-year-old son Ronald Levi.

The grand jury returned true bills against the 43-year-old Youngstown, O., auto mechanic yesterday after Sheriff Mervin O. McKinley reported the accused man tried to hang himself.

McKinley said he found Derolph unconscious on the floor of his jail cell where a towel, used as a noose, had broken after the prisoner tied it about his neck and jumped from his cot.

The sheriff quoted Derdolph as saying:

"I don't care about the old man but they are lying on me about the boy and other things. I wanted to end it all."

The mechanic pleaded guilty to shooting Wentling to death the night of Dec. 27, but claimed the boy was slain accidentally in a scuffle.

McKinley said Derdoph stated he shot Wentling because he thought him responsible for the death of his own father in 1912, when the accused man's father, step-mother and step-sister were killed in what the coroner termed double murder and suicide.

Department of Public Assistance Recommends Act Compelling Families On Relief to Give Pint to Each Child be Abandoned

BILLS ARE PILING UP

By the Associated Press

Harrisburg, Feb. 18—(AP)—Democrats in the house disclosed today they have prepared a bill to abolish the present milk control commission and replace it with new members with new duties.

The bill, which may be presented in the house this week, was approved by Democratic leaders in several recent caucuses during which they drafted the party's policy for the 1941 session of the Pennsylvania legislature.

In another move relating to milk, the department of public assistance recommended repeal of the law which requires families on relief to purchase from state grants a pint of milk daily for each dependent child.

The act is "costly and unsound" said Frank A. Robbins, chairman of the board of public assistance in a letter to the welfare committees of the senate and house. It was passed in 1939.

Action in this week's session was largely in the house which is the usual situation this early in a regular legislature. The major proposals pile up in the senate toward the end of a session.

The house returned to session at 1 p. m. today with a new batch of bills before it. Introduced last night were measures to appropriate $100,000 to combat sabotage; transform state teacher colleges

Many Killed and Wounded As Roof is Pierced Just Before End of Three and Half Hour Raid Over London; Stretcher Bearers, Doctors and Nurses Work in Bringing Out Survivors Trapped Underground

ENEMY PAYING RISING TOLL IN NIGHT FORAYS

London, Feb. 18—Many persons were killed and injured when a heavy bomb crashed through the roof of a London shelter during a raid on the capital last night, but the government declared today that the Germans are paying a steadily rising price for their forays.

Four raiders were shot down overnight, it was announced officially, and an Air Ministry news service bulletin emphasized the ability of British pilots to spot and tail Nazi bombers even on dark, cloudy nights.

The air raid shelter roof was pierced just before the end of a 3½-hour raid and stretcher bearers, doctors and nurses worked for six hours bringing out survivors trapped underground when debris from the blast choken the entrance.

The shelter normally holds several hundred persons and workers bringing out the victims said the loss of life would be even heavier than at first believed. No figures were issued, however.

BOLTZ DECIDES TO PLEAD GUILTY

Philadelphia, Feb. 18—(AP)—Less than an hour after he had surprised the prosecution by pleading innocent, Robert J. Boltz changed his mind today and pleaded guilty to 185 indictments charging embezzlement, fraudulent conversion and violation of the state securities in connection with a $2,500,000 investment business.

The second plea was as unexpected as the first and climaxed a swift-moving and somewhat unusual hearing.

After Boltz had pleaded innocent, his attorney, L. Albert Gray, asked for a continuance. Judge Eugene V. Alessandroni refused. Gray then threatened to withdraw as counsel, saying he was not familiar enough with the case to proceed.

This brought from Judge Alessandroni an unsual action. Not only did he stand firm on refusing a continuance, but he appointed Gray counsel for Boltz an an officer of the court, thereby blocking his threatened withdrawal.

MINORITY REPORT IS RECEIVED

Senator Clark Charges in Debate on Lend-Lease Bill That Legislation Would Carry This Country to "The Very Brink Of War" as California Republican Insists it Would Make Roosevelt "A Dictator or Worse"

CALLED GAMBLE UPON VICTORY BY BRITISH

Washington, Feb. 18—(AP)—Senator Clark (D-Mo) charged in debate on the British aid bill today that the measure would carry this country to "the very brink of war," and Senator Johnson (R-Calif) asserted formally that it would make President Roosevelt "a dictator or worse."

Opening the second day of Senate debate, Clark declared that the measure would "strip" American defense, grant "automatic powers" to the president and reverse traditional American foreign policy.

In a lengthy minority report, Johnson, ranking Republican member of the foreign relations committee, reviewed the bill's provisions which would permit the president to transfer war materials to warring "democracies" and declared that Britain needed no aid beyond what she already was getting from the United States.

"No one can read this bill," Johnson wrote, "and doubt that its ultimate effect, if not its declared purpose, will be to take us into war."

Clark saw the bill as a gamble "upon the one card of a complete British victory."

Summing up his objections to the bill, Johnson asserted that "there is not need now for additional aid to Britain. Britain is receiving—and will continue to receive—all aid necessary that can, with a due regard for our safety, be accorded."

Declaring that the measure was "not a bill for aiding Britain nor a bill for the national defense of our own country," Johnson asserted that it proposed to grant powers to the president never before given to a chief executive.

"It makes the chief executive a dictator and worse, a dictator with power to take us into war," he said.

By its terms, Johnson contended,

Severe Cold Wave Chills Most of Nation From the Plains States to Atlantic Today

By the Associated Press

Cold that drove the mercury to 31 degrees below zero in Devils Lake, N. D., chilled the nation from the plains states to the Atlantic today.

A foot and a half of snow fell in upper Michigan and eight inches in western New York, blocking roads.

The cold air mass covered the northern plains states, the upper Mississippi valley, the upper Great Lakes region and Indiana. Widespread light to moderate snows fell from the Great Lakes region eastward to southern New England and the southern Atlantic states. Sub zero cold hit Maine.

With the exception of a slight rise in southern Florida, southern temperatures dropped three to 12 degrees overnight, the freezing extending to Tennessee and North Carolina.

Continued cold was forecast for the stricken area.

The New York snowfall amounted to four to eight inches in the west, two to four in the central and one to three in the eastern and southern parts.

The lowest New England temperatures during the night included 10 below at Caribou, Me., and 21 above at Boston.

A 48-mile an hour wind dropped the temperature 25 degrees to a low of 22 above in the Baltimore area.

After Almost 2,000 Years Pontius Pilate Is Demoted in Revised Catholic Testament

Kansas City, Feb. 18—(AP)—After almost 2,000 years, Pontius Pilate has been demoted.

Recorded in Biblical history as governor of Judea, the man who delivered Jesus to his Roman superiors to be crucified will be listed simply as procurator of the Roman province in a streamlined revision of the Catholic new testament.

The revision the first since 1749—will be released May 18, designated as Biblical Sunday in the United States.

Bishop Edwin O'Hara of Kansas City, chairman of a confraternity committee which rewrote the new testiment in modern language, explained that Pilate was not a governor in the modern sense, but a fiscal agent of Rome with judicial powers.

The revision is the result of nearly five years work. The confraternity has started revising the old testament. This work will require two or three years more.

Many words of Latin derivation, no longer commonly used, have been omitted. The frequent "concupiscence" has been replaced by "lust." Such outmoded words as "saith," "calleth" and "took place" have been changed to "said," "call-

NEW SCHEDULES FOR AIRMAIL IN EFFECT MONDAY

New airmail pick-up schedules which are expected to improve local airmail and air express service will go into effect here on Monday, February 24.

Beginning on that date, the morning northbound flight on the Pittsburgh-Jamestown route will leave the Smoky City at 10 30 o clock instead of eight o'clock, arriving in Warren at 11 55 o'clock

The afternoon schedule, southbound from Jamestown to Pittsburgh, will be a half hour later at all places, leaving this city at 4:35 o clock

Enumerating the advantages of the new schedules, company officials declared that it would give all points on the Pittsburgh-Jamestown route the advantage of a Stratoliner connection from the West Coast which reaches Pittsburgh at 9.35 a m, trunk-line connections from Florida, the South and the Southwest arriving at Pittsburgh at 10 00 a m, and connections from New York and New England arriving around the same hour

The new schedules also will provide towns along the route with a mid day air mail dispatch which will be a distinct improvement over the earlier schedule now in force.

Although the idea that the public would use air mail to send a letter only a few miles, or that there would be any advantage in such a service, was once ridiculed, there has been a steady increase in the movement of air mail between intermediate points on the Air Pick-up route Accounting for the increase is the fact that while these points are an average distance of only 17 miles apart, the public has learned that a letter can be dispatched by air pick-up from one point to another on the morning flight and delivered the same day whereas it usually takes overnight by regular mail, thus effecting a saving of an entire day. It also is possible at most places to send an air mail letter to other points along the route on the morning flight and receive a reply on the afternoon flight if the letter is dispatched special delivery.

The later morning schedule will give the public a better opportunity to use this service which is of particular value along this route where there is a strong community of interest among the towns that it covers

On the afternoon flight, all points along the route will have the advantage of a half hour later closing for their air mail This schedule will arrive in Pittsburgh at 6 p m where it will make trunkline connections affording next-day delivery at every airline city in the country for air mail dispatched from these towns by Air Pick-up

Graduates of Local Flying School Receive Diplomas at Theatre After Dinner Party Held at Carver Hotel

Nine of the ten Warren county young people who took advantage of the aviation instruction provided at the Warren Airport by the Civil Aeronautics Administration under the sponsorship of the Warren Chamber of Commerce were awarded diplomas from the C. A. A. at the Library theatre last evening.

The presentation followed a dinner at the Carver Hotel, at which the new pilots, their instructors and other invited guests were in attendance.

William E. Yeager, president of the Chamber of Commerece, presented diplomas to the following. George Sherwood Miller, Emerson Baxter, Lloyd Leroy Porter, Robert Porter, Albert Carlino, William Grant Herdendorf, Richard Dean Metzgar, Beaturice Koebley and David Ray Correll

In presenting the diplomas, Mr. Yeager said.

"The Warren Chamber of Commerce believes that the future of our community depends absolutely upon the kind of young people we turn out today, and that the better rounded the educational facilities we provide for them, the better citizens and community builders we will have

"It was for that reason that the directors requested the Civil Aeronautics Administration to include Warren in its educational program.

"Although we have an excellent air field here, and exceptional instructors, Warren was not exactly equipped according to governmental red-tape specifications; but by constant attention to the matter, and enlisting the aid of every friend we had in Washington, we were granted authority for conducting a course of training here last summer.

"The Chamber of Commerce was glad to assume responsibility for sponsoring the course and recommended our own local airport staff as instructors, although considerable pressure was brought to bear on us to name an out-of-town educational institution

"When plans were completed and announcements made fifty ambitious young men and women enrolled for the preliminary ground-school work.

"At the conclusion of that training, our friend Mr. V. S. King, under whose supervision the training was given, reported to our Chamber of Commerce on the work accomplished, and for our entire board I wish to state that we were delighted with the splendid grades given the respective students.

"Under provisions of the C. A. A, the ten students receiving the highest grades were eligible to receive free training in the air; and the Chamber gladly continued its sponsorship and recommended continued instruction by King Air Service

"One of the ten eligible students left our community before completing his course, but the other nine who began the flight course have finished it with splendid grades.

"The Chamber has applied for authority to conduct another course immediately, and will follow up in an effort to make it a permanent asset, believing that we have sufficient young people interested in aviation to maintain adequate classes.

"Tonight it is our pleasure to award to our first graduates the diplomas provided by the United States government in recognition of their splendid work. And it is an equal pleasure to express in a less tangible way the gratification their application and accomplishments have given to the entire community, and our sincere hope that this is but the beginning of a bright and happy aeronautic future for them all."

Mr. Yeager then introduced Mr. King, under whose supervision all instruction was given He expressed appreciation on behalf of the King Air Service and the students graduating from the C. P. T. P. class to the Chamber of Commerce, the management of the Library theatre, the Warren Times-Mirror, city officials and all individuals interested in the local airport for their cooperation and assistance.

In addition to the students those who attended the dinner at the Carver Hotel included Mr. and Mrs Yeager, Mr and Mrs H. W. Correll, Mr. and Mrs Henry O Walker, Mr and Mrs. George Sarvis, Mr and Mrs V. S King, Mr and Mrs. Marshall Mathis, Ed C. Lowrey, William Maier, and Mrs. Althea N. Correll.

CHURCHES HERE WILL OBSERVE APPEAL SUNDAY

March 2nd, the first Sunday in Lent, will be observed on a nation-wide scale in large numbers of American churches as a special day for foreign relief appeals, according to announcement made today by Warren County Ministerial Association.

Eight denominations — Baptist, Congregational, Evangelical, Evangelical and Reformed, Friends, Methodist, United Brethren, and Universalist—have set aside that day for special attention to the problems of relieving distress in a war-torn world. Other churches are expected to cooperate. In some cities the whole week of February 23rd to March 2nd will be used for presenting the relief appeals.

This special Sunday is being sponsored nationally by the Committee on Foreign Relief Appeals in the Churches, on behalf of these appeals which are recommended by the Committee: Church Committee for China Relief; Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical Churches of Europe; American Friends Service Committee; American Committee for Christian Refugees; International Missionary Council's Fund for Stranded Missionaries; War Prisoner's Aid of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A.; the World Emergency Fund of the Y. W. C. A., and the war service work of the American Bible Society.

The Kiawawa Indians of northern Mississippi were forbidden by their religion to eat meat or fish they themselves had caught. So they hired neighboring tribes to hunt for them or traded catches.

McKenney On Bridge

"SUPER-CONTRACT" IS LATEST INNOVATION; ADDS JOKER, WIDOW

BY WM. E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Many of you will recall the introduction of five-suit bridge a few years ago. While I do not believe that a five-suit deck ever will be popular, the 65-card deck did bring out the idea of a "widow" in bridge. The possibility of bettering a hand through the exchange of a widow card is certainly attractive and may conceivably some day become an integral part of contract bridge.

Captain John M. Elliott, U. S. N., retired, has invented a form of contract with a widow, which may interest my readers. He calls his game "Super-Contract Bridge."

The rules are very simple. The joker is added to the deck. At the end of the deal, the card left over (it can be the joker or any other card) is turned face up.

Bidding proceeds as in the regular game, but is naturally influenced by the fact that the winning side will own the widow card. After the opening lead is made and the dummy is spread, declarer may swap the widow card for any card either in the dummy or in his own hand. Or he may stand pat on his cards as dealt. The discard or rejected card is set aside, face up, and the hand played out with the 52 remaining cards.

The joker is a "wild" card. If it is led, the leader must specify what suit it calls for, and the others must follow if able. The joker may be played to a lead by another hand, even though the player is able to follow suit, and it wins the trick, as it ranks above the ace of any suit the owner chooses to designate.

But it cannot be attached to any suit if the owner has previously discarded on a lead of that suit. And if the joker is led as a plain-suit card at a trump contract, it can be won by a trump.

The attractive aspect of "Super-Contract Bridge" is the opportunity it gives for an indifferent hand to acquire greater power. A hand with few top cards can become strong by the addition of the joker. And if the turn-up card is a high honor, such a hand may be able to outbid the opponents and build itself into a rock-crusher.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Occasionally some person emerges on the national or international scene who seems so typical of a "new order" that every one, with the surprised tones of a man who has just made a great discovery, points to him and says: "Here is the very embodiment of changing times."

Such is the case of John Gilbert Winant, recently appointed United States ambassador to the court of St. James. "Gil" Winant, as his intimates call him, has been around Washington, London, and Geneva for some years, but it was only upon his elevation to this office that capital observers suddenly noticed that he seemed the personification of the changes that are taking place in politics, labor, social economy and diplomacy.

A glance back at some of Ambassador Winant's immediate predecessors might help explain this. There were the bankers and financiers, Joseph P. Kennedy (whom Winant replaces), and former Vice President Charles G. Dawes. There were the editors and publishers, Robert W. Bingham and George Harvey. There was lawyer John W. Davis and industrialist Andrew Mellon; and there was the senator who was to become secretary of state, Frank B. Kellogg.

'New Dealer' Long Ago

COMPARE these with "the New Hampshire Lincoln"—gaunt, homespun Winant, who has been a Republican almost from birth, but was a "New Dealer" before the New Deal came into existence. As member of the New Hampshire legislature nearly 25 years ago, he was pounding on labor reforms before anyone ever dreamed of the Wagner act. As three-time governor of his state (and no one had ever been elected twice before that), he hammered away at "New Deal" social legislation with such vigor that President Roosevelt called him into the fold.

In 1934, the President named him to the Textile Inquiry Board which was to investigate the great textile strike of that year. Within a few months, he was appointed assistant director of the International Labor Office (an autonomous organization in the League of Nations). In that international capacity, he waged a war for unemployment insurance and old-age pensions and in no time at all President Roosevelt had him back as head of Social Security.

He might have strung along there forever, but the ILO called for him again. Besides, he had broken with his party to such an extent that he had resigned his Social Security job in order to campaign against "Alf" Landon, and the latter's contention that social security was no more than "a fraud against the working man."

He was elected director of the ILO by what would have been a unanimous vote of 30-to-0, if it hadn't been for the failure of two directors to vote at all.

When war came, it found Mr. Winant primarily interested in what was happening to labor. One of his statements on the European conflict read like this: "On the outcome of the present struggle between Great Britain and Nazi Germany depends the future of labor and the labor movement in Europe. If Britain falls, the whole of western and central Europe will pass under totalitarian rule that will obliterate the gains made in 150 years of struggle and sacrifice, and place the American worker in the front line of defense."

He Likes Conferences

THIS is so much stronger a statement because Mr. Winant is by birth a gentleman of means and by rearing a scholar. Before he was anything else, he was a teacher at St. Paul's, at which he had once been a student, and to which he returned after Princeton. He had a comfortable inheritance and married into a family of considerable wealth.

He's 52 years old, but looks a great deal younger. His clothes have an unpressed appearance. He is almost the antithesis of what a diplomat should be: He's a slow talker, and in debate has the habit of gazing down his shirt front for seconds before he makes a statement. He is a "conference" addict and holds the conferences interminably before he makes a decision.

But for all that, he is one of international labor's most respected men and a close friend of Ernest Bevin, who holds the post of minister of labor in Mr. Churchill's cabinet.

Capital "pro" kibitzers point to his record, emphasize the fact that he is another Republican who has risen to the top in a Democratic administration, and say: "Keep your eye on 'Gil'—as Ambassador to the Court of St. James, he'll make history." The "anti's" just shake their heads and say: "Maybe so, but what's politics coming to?"

Hollywood Sights & Sound

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Just as a sample of what horrible turns things take when they're explored too seriously, there's the statistical business on "Kiss the Boys Goodbye."

There's more than one kiss in the picture. Statistically: Mary Martin and Don Ameche, heroine and hero, must kiss, by script, 79 times. They have 40 days to get this kissing done—an average of not quite two kisses daily. But we must not overlook possible delays due to weather, illness, dialogue changes, broken dishes and what not. And then there are rehearsals, hours upon hours; and an average of five takes to every camera angle; and some three camera angles to every kissing scene. This amounts, allowing as many kisses during rehearsals as during takes, to 60 kisses a day, or 2,400 in 40 days of shooting, which is a heap of kissing.

"KISS" was in its third day, or 240th kiss, when Elizabeth Patterson, as a die-hard daughter of the Old South, did her scene involving Ameche, Oscar Levant, and General Lee's chair.

Miss Patterson, who is actually from Tennessee and a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, wasn't too sure as to how her family would react to her role as Aunt Lily Lou. Though she plays the role straight, the implication of the part is all comedy.

They have switched the idea of the story somewhat since its Broadway days. Then, Clare Boothe's travesty dealt with a Hollywood search for a heroine of a picture with many purely coincidental resemblances to "Gone With the Wind." Now, however, "G.W.T.W." is finished and released, and the idea is rather dated. So Hollywood is throwing it right back on the stage: the search is for the heroine of a Broadway play, and to win the part showgirl Mary Martin hastens back to her old Dixie mansion to be "discovered" by the scouts.

MISS PATTERSON, as Aunt Lily Lou, a regal lady splendid among spreading Southern splendors, gives an acidulously polite welcome to the Yanks (Ameche and Levant) in course of which she gaspingly remonstrates when Ameche is about to sit in a worn old chair beside the harpsichord. "No, no, not there! General Lee sat in that chair," is her line.

"That isn't nearly as funny to me," the character actress said later, "as it should be to an audience. My father, Lieut. Edmund Dewitt Patterson, enlisted at the age of 16 in the Ninth Alabama regiment, then was transferred to Lee's army in northern Virginia. He was seriously wounded at Gettysburg. My family has a chair which General Lee used when he visited my father's home, and it's regarded with just as much reverance as I'm supposed to regard the one in the script."

That Miss Patterson is playing the role might be considered something of a sign of final truce in the old struggle. For she recalls that once, some years ago, she turned down a role in "The Copperhead" with Lionel Barrymore—because it would have shown her molding bullets for Northern soldiers!

OUTLOOK IN THE BALKANS DARKENS

The last big obstacle against a German march through southeastern Europe to the Mediterranean apparently is removed by the report from Sofia that Bulgaria has reached a non-aggression pact with Turkey.

Assurance that Turkey would stand aside may be the keystone to fit together all the military and diplomatic preparations Germany has made for a Balkan offensive.

It appears there is not much Bulgaria or Yugoslavia could do about it if Germany decides to send her army through them to reach the Dardanelles or Greece.

Turkey has been a non-belligerent ally of Britain, pledged to go to her assistance in event of an act of "aggression" leading to war in the Mediterranean area. Back of Turkey's attitude, and Bulgaria's as well, looms the United States of Soviet Russia and its reaction to German moves in southeastern Europe.

It has been reported that Bulgaria, now believed likely to accede to German pressure for a right of way into eastern Greece, failed to obtain Russian backing for any resistance to German demands. Now it would seem that Russia, tacitly or otherwise, has declined to back up Turkey.

Turkey's alliance with the British always has been overshadowed by her relations with Soviet Russia.

The bulk of Bulgaria's armies had been concentrated on her Turkish frontier in anticipation of a Turkish attack when and if German troops started through Bulgaria. These troops, foreign observers now believe, will be withdrawn.

London sources acknowledge an accord, such as was reported in Sofia Monday, means a sharp blow to British influence in the Balkans. Some diplomatic observers feel that the odds against Greece would become so great, her victories over Italy notwithstanding, that the mere threat of a Nazi blow might force her to capitulate.

COMPANY I IS MOBILIZED

The mobilization of Company I at the State Armory Monday morning and the presence of the uniformed boys in the community for the next week is bound to have a sobering effect on the community.

Company I is scheduled to leave for Indiantown Gap next week, and at approximately the same time another group of Selective Service men will leave for Pittsburgh to be inducted into service.

Not since the days of the World War has such a large group left the community for active training. Their leave-taking should make citizens think more seriously of the world situation.

To many of the older residents, and especially those veterans of the World War, yesterday's ceremonies recalled the historic events of 1917-18, when Company I served with distinction as part of the 28th, which later earned the name of Iron Division. Veterans recall that the company was mustered in at the armory July 15, 1917. In September it assembled with the other companies of the regiment at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. Not until the following March were overseas orders received, and, after the usual period of training in France, the company was sent into the front line early in July of 1918.

In the meantime, or in October 1917, to be more specific, an order was issued reorganizing the 28th Division, of which the 112th was a unit, and as such the regiment went through the battles of Chateau Thierry, Fismes and Fismette, Argonne Forest and the Woevre.

Company I made history before the World War. It served with honor in the Spanish-American War, participating in the battle of Coamo under Captain D. F. A. Wheelock, also assisting in the capture of Ponce. In 1916 it was called to the Mexican border under Captain Bordwell, spending seven months along the Rio Grande. More recently, about four years ago, the unit was called out to help in flood relief work at Johnstown. Besides Major Bordwell, other well-known military leaders who have preceded Roy P. Miskimon as ranking officer in Company I were Captains Fred E. Windsor, William Tribble, R. N. Summerton and Charles Pearson.

While a strenuous schedule has been worked out for the boys of Company I during their short stay at the local armory, it is pleasing to note that it will not be all work and no play for them and they will have an opportunity to take advantage of the hospitality that is to be afforded them by the people of Warren.

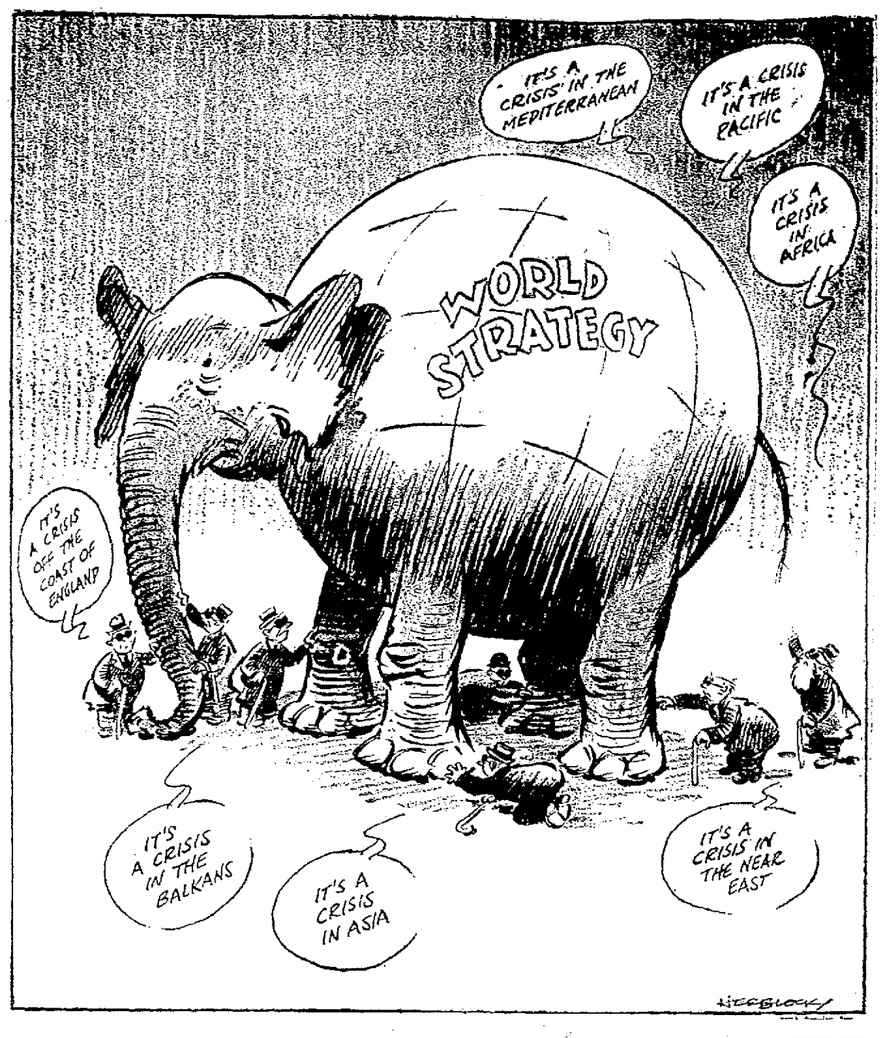
The Blind Men and the Elephant



YOUR NATION'S CAPITOL

By Peter Edson

The Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

CAPITAL SOON BECOMES ARMY BOOM TOWN

Washington, Feb. 18 — Soldier, would you just listen to this:

Three thousand to 4000 hostesses, recruited from the 180,000 government employes.

Dancing in the streets every nice night all summer long, in the big square between the two Agriculture Department buildings.

Show in the Labor Department auditorium every Sunday.

Show in the Interior Department auditorium every Monday.

Show in the Agriculture Department auditorium every Tuesday.

Radio broadcast quiz program from the Labor Department auditorium, with prizes for the soldiers and government gals who do the best, on Wednesday.

Amateur night, a la Major Bowes, from the Commerce auditorium come Thursday.

Big-scale dances at the Government Printing Office and Bureau of Engraving Friday and Saturday.

No, soldier, this isn't a phony dream for a week's furlough with pay in advance, but the honest-to-gosh program for entertaining the troops when they come to town on leave. An the town isn't Columbus, Ga., San Antonio or Bonneville, but Washington, D. C., slated to become one of the biggest boom towns of the country in the next two years and as long thereafter as the defense effort continues.

Within a few miles of Washington will be four big army camps which will train 120,000 men. There will be 5000 or so on leave every night of the week, and on payday week-ends there will be double that number or more. The question is, what to do with them?

Then there is the other army of government clerks, growing at the rate of 4000 a month. By July there will be 180,000 and the other part of the question is, what to do with them?

So the chief of the federal employes' welfare units in the various government agencies have been putting their heads together to map out programs of entertainment which will let off the steam of a surplus population of nearly 300,000 plus the 500,000 already here.

Recruiting the hostesses from among the gals of the gov'ment is the first step. Getting the local merchants to put up prizes for the amateur and radio quiz programs is another. Making over the capital park system, doing away with a golf course to provide more tennis courts and things like that is another.

The big idea is to have something going on every minute of the time-off periods for soldiers and clerks. And in addition to the government building auditoriums, every school hall and meeting place is being catalogued for possible use as a smaller amusement center. Cupid will be running rampant all over the place and motorists will be warned to safeguard their tires from stray arrows.

All this effort is of course on the strictly nice side and it's being organized as a counter attraction to Washington's notorious red light districts. It's not in the guide books, but the sad fact is that south of the capitol is an area which is a national disgrace. War Department and district police plans are already afoot to have the area patrolled by military police to keep the soldiers out of trouble when they're on leave. That's merely another manifestation of the boom-town atmosphere which Washington is taking on.

A white-collar WPA project has already been canvassing the housing situation, and has reported fewer than 3400—2 per cent of the city's dwellings—vacant. With only 5000 rooms for rent, you won't be able to find a place to hang your hat in another six weeks. The problem then becomes one of getting people who don't ordinarily rent rooms to turn over the spare bedroom to visitors.

There's a 2400-unit government housing project under way, but it can't be completed much within two years. And so, while the good people in Washington will be having fun this summer, dancing in the streets and such, they may not have any place to go afterward. In that respect, the soldiers will have it on the civilians.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The world's number one Wagnerian tenor is Lauritz Melchior. He has sung Siegfried more than 190 times, Tannhauser more than a hundred and five, Lohengrin nearly seventy.

He is a great huge bulk of a man, massive in body, ponderous in stride. Before the war he lived (perhaps still does, officially) on a hunting preserve in Germany. His home is a castle occupied formerly by robber barons, and next to singing Wagner, hunting big game is his greatest pleasure.

But Melchior is a Dane, and once he was a member of the Danish royal guards. Every year, in appropriate season, those ex-Danish guardsmen who are in this country flock to his apartments in the Ansonia hotel for a celebration.

Recently there appeared in the Manhattan newspapers many photographs of the Melchiors at home, entertaining some 26 former members of Denmark's royal guard. One of these was Jean Hersholt, the famed movie actor. The photographer had caught them in many intriguingly informal poses, such as slicing hams and making war on various targets throughout the apartment with an "air" rifle.

Please note that I have put quotes around the word "air." Maybe it was an air rifle. But the muzzle looked large enough to drop a pencil through it.

WHEN I saw these pictures I was on my way to Madison Square Garden, but somehow I remembered an old story in my files, an earlier Melchior story, one that I had intended using but had filed away and promptly forgot ten.

So I gave up the idea of the Garden and began ransacking my files. After an hour or so I found it. And what a beauty it was. It was about another party, similarly arranged by the hospitable Melchior. And he is hospitable. He knows how to accept you and engulf you and finally overwhelm you with his hospitality. I know; I have broken bread in his home. And I know his Kleinchen, which means Little One—his wife.

Well, as I say, these notes were about another party given by mighty Siegfried for his ex-guardsmen pals. This party was really a beauty. After it got going good Melchior brought out one of his rifles. They thought they would have a little fun shooting a few targets. They stationed a "guard" at the elevator with a white flag to warn the guests. BANG! Another target bit the dust. BANG! BANG! It was like Billy the Kid.

NEXT day, according to hotel gossip, Mrs. Melchior took cake and other refreshments around to the guests in the hotel. Yes, she said, Lauritz and some of his friends had made a little noise the night before. She hoped they hadn't been too much of a bother. And she smiled. Mrs. Lauritz is an accomplished actress. And she is the wife of the world's greatest Siegfried. Of course it was all right. The guests said it was all right even before she promised that it would not happen again.

Now another year has rolled around. And though little Denmark is a different Denmark, big Melchior hasn't forgotten, nor has Jean Hersholt, nor all the others of those former ex-guardsmen who enjoy the relaxation that comes when good fellows get together. Especially when there is so much fun to be had and an "air" gun.

Gee, it's easy to write columns, when you know how.

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: Roger Cosgrave is not the sort of young man to get into difficulties, but he has. He is to marry poised and charming Emily Perry in a month—and he is madly in love with a girl from the New York tenements named Lovely Daye. And he has known Lovely only a couple of days. Now Roger's mother, Marcia Cosgrave, has asked her son to explain himself to her and to Emily.

Chapter 12

Tough Spot

ROGER didn't answer immediately. He sat staring at the pattern of the rug, not because he wished to avoid anything, merely because he was trying to find words with which to couch the truth he must tell.

Emily was looking at him, her wide gray eyes calm but shadowed. Her face looked as if she was crying slowly, inwardly.

"John had no business to come here like that," Roger said finally. "But there is a girl, mother. I mean besides Emily."

"What do you mean? Who is she? How long has this been going on? And what in the world if there is a girl? You're marrying Emily shortly and then there will be no more girls. Every young man has his affairs. I'd hate to think my son was any different." The words had come quickly and in a relieved tone as if she had discovered there was less than she had feared.

"But this is different, mother," Roger persisted. "I mean—" he found it difficult to go on. The thing that had happened had surprised him so that how could he expect anyone else to understand it? "It isn't just an affair."

Marcia smiled sweetly.

"Just what are you trying to say, Roger?" in a pretty sort of helplessness and exasperation. Things had always been simple for Marcia Cosgrave. Going from parents who adored her to a husband who adored her more had made her life a thing that moved at her desire.

Roger looked at Emily. Her presence was making it doubly hard. Yet he had no wish to conceal anything from her. It was just that her sweet face made him feel doubly unworthy. Then his mother was speaking in that pleasant but imperious voice that took everything for granted.

"You must be sensible, Roger. You've always been sensible about everything before. I know how it is. Emily's probably feeling the same way now the wedding's so near. Half afraid there's some other man she'd rather marry. Why, I felt that way about your father, dear."

Marcia paused as if to give him time to get over his astonishment at that.

"I wasn't at all sure when the time came. And you couldn't find a happier couple than we've been."

"I know, mother," Roger said, aware of Emily's haunted eyes on him.

"Of course you do, so everything's all right. The wedding is going on exactly as we planned. Why we couldn't do anything else now, with the Perrys going away on their Mexican trip as soon as Emily's married. Their second honeymoon. Isn't that sweet?"

Emily was looking down at her hands. Roger's diamond still sparkled there. She started slipping it off and on. Roger thought she looked as if she was about to cry. He must do something. He must. But what? Anything he could do in honesty would be sure to make her tears real.

"Now I'm going to leave you children alone. That's probably the trouble. You haven't had any time to yourselves lately. Too many parties. And another one tonight. Aunt Amalia's dinner for you and Emily, Roger. Both families. It's such a lovely thing of Aunt Amalia. Well, you'll soon be off on your honeymoon together!"

She was gone and Emily sat facing Roger in the tense silence.

"You should have told her Roger," Emily said finally. She knew it was tactless. But the silence had gotten unendurable.

"I tried, didn't I?" with the first impatience he had ever shown her. "What can you do with a woman like that? Mother's always been that way. Had her will about things. God knows I wish she could now. I wish it was as easy as that."

How It Had Begun

EMILY was staring at him as if in surprise at discovering he could be impatient. Something about it made him faintly angry. She was too good and she had taken it for granted he was that way. That annoyed him intensely. She seemed to expect him to be superhuman just because she was able to live in that smooth unruffled shell of sweetness. His thought turned to Lovely. Lovely with her quick moods, her flights of temper and of tenderness. A man could be himself with her. He knew as he sat there in the library, its venetian blinds drawn against the brilliant light of the late August day, that he was a little glad to escape from having to live up to Emily.

Some day he would cut loose emotionally one way or another—perhaps not in anger, but some way. And then Emily would be shocked and startled and hurt. With Lovely he hadn't that to fear. Life had been frank and ruthless with her long before he'd met her, and now she was joyously grateful for its unexpected little tendernesses and nicieties.

"What are you going to do?" Emily asked finally.

"What can I do?" still with that note of impatience.

"Roger you've got to go on with it—the presents and all—" she was toying with his ring again.

"You've said that before."

He felt as if he was being cruel to a helpless puppy. If only she'd flare up and tell him she hated him for it all.

But she didn't. Instead she leaned back in the big chair and covered her face with her hands. She sat so, motionless and wordless, for a long time and Roger was reminded of that other time when she had sat in a wing chair so quietly. At Mari's party when she had overheard her cousin John talking about Lovely. He felt like an actor in a wierd play. This thing couldn't be happening to him.

Roger remembered with startled clarity the day Emily's mother had come into the living room as he waited to take Emily to the dog show at Madison, New Jersey. It was late May. Mrs. Perry had started to talk of their engagement as if it was an already established fact.

"I think it would be nice to announce it soon, Roger," she had said.

Roger tried to recover his emotions at that time. There had been no other girl he liked as well as Emily. Probably all this stuff about a grand passion was foolishness. There wasn't such a thing. His mother and father adored Emily as the daughter they had never had.

So he had watched Winthrope Ramsey show the Cosgrave Bedlingtons and Kerry Blues that day in a glamorous haze. He was to be an engaged man!

Roger bought the ring for Emily next day.

Well, it hadn't been Emily's fault any more than it had been his. As a matter of fact it really hadn't been very fair to her.

Strange Request

FINALLY Emily looked up at him, a strange expression on her misery-masked face.

"Roger," she said in a very small voice," I want you to do something for me."

Roger looked at her, waiting for her to go on. He dared not say he would. She might ask something he couldn't do—like give Lovely up.

"I want to see her. I want you to take me up there. Now." Her voice came in little broken pieces with taut silences between.

Roger wasn't sure he had heard aright. He stared at Emily.

"I want to see her, Roger," she insisted. "I must see her."

"But," hesitatingly," I can't do that!"

"Why not?" her hands moved out in the dimness of the room like pale ghosts of appeal. "Why not, Roger? We're two girls in love—" she paused and changed it," who want the same man. If I thought she really loved you—" she paused thoughtfully. It was a long time before she went on. Blaze had gotten up, tired of inactivity and strolled from the room.

"Roger," finally, "I think we have a right to see each other. You have belonged to me first. I have a right to see the girl I give you up to, if I must give you up." The last scarcely above a whisper.

Emily showed a firmness that Roger had never suspected existed under her soft pretty exterior. There were depths of sustaining metal there he'd never touched before. He was to see more of that quality as months wore on Eventually they were walking to the garage together. They got into a roadster and Roger backed out expertly. Marcia Cosgrave watched them and smiled contentedly.

Everything was all fixed again. They were going out together and they looked completely poised as if nothing was wrong. Young love had its ups and downs. Marcia thought indulgently. It was unthinkable that Emily shouldn't eventually be her daughter. Emily was so suited to fit into their family circle and ornament the home Roger would eventually create for her.

She was perfect for carrying on all of the fine old Cosgrave tradition. She belonged with all of the priceless old Cosgrave possessions. It would be a pleasure to pass them on to her. Marcia Cosgrave's heart was light and glowing with happiness.

Emily and Roger rode up the hill in silence. There were still hollyhocks in bloom around Granny Hale's cottage. Phlox was a riot of tender lavender and white at the edge of the lawn. Old fashioned Lady-of-the-Lake lifted heliotrope spikes toward the sun. A gnarled apple tree bent under its weight of fruit.

"It's beautiful!" Emily's voice was muted.

Roger knew quite well what she was thinking. Honeymoon cottage. That's what it always had been. And she had always loved the place, and supposed her own marriage would start there. It would be, if not their real home, their hide-away. The place they'd go when they felt the need of each other and the sky and the stars and the scent of flowers blowing in from the garden.

But Lovely did not come to the door immediately.

YESTERDAY: One day Roger Cosgrave had been looking forward to his marriage with Emily Perry, only a month away. The next day he had met a girl named, of all things, Lovely Daye, and the whole world had changed its tune. Now Emily has demanded that he take her to Lovely, and against his wish, he has done so. But Lovely is a long time coming to the door of the cottage.

Chapter 13

"Make It—Strong"

ROGER'S heart started during the moment they waited. Suppose someone was there with her? He felt his breath catch uncomfortably. Emily was waiting calmly. She knew with her woman's sense of things, that Lovely had been waiting and when she saw Roger had someone with him she'd stepped to a mirror somewhere to be at her best when she opened the door.

Emily was aware her suspicion was true when Lovely stood before them saying in her lush voice:

"Roger! I'm so glad to see you. Oh, Roger!" And then as if only just aware of her, just able to tear her attention from Roger: "You've brought someone!"

Emily knew she was flushing. She had never been able to wear her affection so on the outside. Caress Roger so with her voice when a stranger was near.

"Yes, Lovely," Roger was saying though he knew it was unnecessary. He knew Lovely had recognized Emily. "This is Emily, Emily, I've told you about Lovely."

Finally the words were out. He'd had the courage to do it.

The girls' eyes met and held. The two seemed to be taking measure of each other, to be reading under the outward signs things visible only to women who loved the same man.

Lovely, oddly enough, was the first to recover.

"Come in. There's no use saying I'm going to find it easy to talk to a girl like you. I'm not. I won't know what to say. You'll have to do the talking." It had been cordial, friendly, almost gay. Yet Roger knew she was tense under it. That her heart was trembling with confusion. Her eyes were asking him what it meant.

"Cigarets?" Her hand trembled a little as she offered them.

"No, thank you." It seemed over prim of Emily but actually she dared not reach out her own hand. It would tremble so much more violently than the slight tremor of Lovely's.

"Can I do something?" Lovely asked as the silence seemed to get brittle and sharp between them. "Mix a drink? Or make tea?" The last an afterthought, as she glanced quickly at Roger wondering if one did mix drinks for a girl like Emily.

"I think a drink would be nice," Emily said and Roger knew a start of surprise. Emily never touched liquor until five and then rarely. "Make it—strong."

"Right up my alley!" Lovely's smile was dazzling. She was herself again.

Roger could see that Emily was bowled over as he had been when he first saw Lovely. On the ropes, only in a different way. Emily had never seen a girl like Lovely before at close quarters. This was something new, different. Illuminating. It was as if for the first time Emily was aware of girls like Lovely as real human beings with desires and ambitions, hopes and dreams.

As for Lovely, she was suddenly the most completely poised and possessed of the three. Her mood as she moved about making drinks was as light as a fern leaf. Roger knew a sense of pride in her. He could take her anywhere. Not as he could have Emily, sure she would blend unobtrusively with the background of any occasion. But flambouyantly. Gallantly. She would ornament any occasion.

No Solution

AS SHE came close to him with the drinks he noticed her freshness, a sort of bloom about her. He wondered how she achieved it, since she had brought no wardrobe with her and had to wear the same thing continuously. He made note of the fact that he must have some things sent to her, not only necessities but ornaments. Fine perfumes. Good powders and creams.

Emily took the drink eagerly.

"I needed this," she said sipping it and forcing a smile to her lips.

"You and me both!" Lovely answered, and Roger caught a subtle meaning in the words. He looked from one girl to the other and had the strange feeling they were going to be friends. They were looking at each other with understanding and in a way that shut him out. He was startled. It didn't make sense. They should be quarreling.

"You know, I'd wanted to see you," Lovely was speaking and to Emily. "Oh, I got a glimpse of you this morning. But I mean I really wanted to see you. I've never been this close to a glamor girl before."

Audacious, thought Roger. Yet it had come with simple sweetness.

"There's nothing very glamorous about me," Emily said wistfully. "Now that you've seen me you probably realize we're not very much to look at. I'd like to know what you really think."

"Well I like you," Lovely admitted slowly.

"I think I like you too," from Emily a trace uncertainly. "And now that I've seen you —"

"Yes?" Lovely's face was intensely vital.

"Well I don't know," Emily finished helplessly.

Roger had thought it would be dramatic, that their voices would rise and they would scream at each other. He expected to be the center of something like a hurricane. But they were talking quietly, sipping their drinks.

"Of course Roger's the whole question. Who'll be the have and who the have not!" Lovely said.

"Yes," from Emily in a very small voice.

"We could flip a coin!" Lovely's voice was vibrant. She flashed a brilliant, luring smile at Roger.

Emily looked up startled. She couldn't have commanded a smile like that then if she were to die. She caught her lower lip between her teeth and clenched her hands on the arms of her chair. Roger thought for an instant he saw tears in her eyes.

She finished her drink quickly. She rose.

"I'm afraid it wouldn't do any good," she said.

Roger wondered afterwards how they got out of the house. It was as if all three had been waiting anxiously for some sign that would end that terrible interview.

Roger had no memory of any goodbyes, even of helping Emily into the car. She just seemed to be there instantly. All the way down the hill Emily said nothing. She sat far over in her corner of the car, her face turned away. When they got to her house Roger saw she had been crying. She brushed at the tears with her hand.

"What about Aunt Amalia's dinner tonight?" Roger asked as he left her.

"We'll go, of course," Emily's voice was a pale wisp of sound on the sunny afternoon air. "Be there promptly if you can." She went in without turning to look at him.

Roger started. He knew then that he had expected her to cancel the engagement. But she was going through with it. That dinner of the families would clinch things. There would be no drawing back after that. He felt as if a weight greater than he could bear was settling over his heart.

Puzzled

IT WAS still early afternoon. He couldn't go home and face his mother's happy chatter about the event. He'd go mad, much as he adored his pretty, still young looking mother. He drove aimlessly along the Albany Post road, then went into Tumble Inn.

He was at the bar ordering a drink before he realized Hugh Chase was standing beside him. Hugh was still in evening clothes. He had been drinking more than he needed, but Hugh never got maudlin. He spoke to Roger, who replied coolly.

"Bring your drink over here." Hugh suggested. "I've got things to say to you."

"I can't think of anything I'd want to hear you say, Hugh." Roger's cold eyes seemed to look through and beyond the youth. He was remembering that morning when Hugh had been with Lovely and his smile, which suggested more than words could have.

"I know," Hugh replied. "I know how you feel but there are things I've got to say about this morning. Things I feel I should say, if I'm going to lay any claim to decency at all."

There was something so earnest about him that Roger stared for a moment trying to think what he could want and then followed him to a table.

"It's about that girl," Hugh began.

"You and I haven't anything to say about her, Hugh," Roger's voice was like cold steel.

"You're misunderstanding me, Roger," Hugh went on. "I want to make an apology to her. And to you. The things that happened while John and I were there are things to be proud of. I went up there with John for a lark expecting to find just a smart barfly. Or a beautiful dumbbell. Restful and relaxing because she never thought before speaking — you know the sort. We all do. But I was all wet. She pretty near near brained John for getting fresh. I took a tip and remembered my manners."

He paused. Roger merely stared at him. Roger realized that all that day this was the thing he'd wanted someone to tell him, that Lovely had treasured his honor in the presence of his friends. A restless cloud lifted. But he gave no sign of what was going on within him.

"But that's neither here nor there. I just wanted to tell you because I think the kid deserves it. She's all right." Hugh's eyes met Roger's honestly.

"It's obvious," he continued, "that she was born on the wrong side of the tracks, and nobody can blame her for wanting to cross over. But Roger, as your best friend—you know we've been pals since we were children—where does she fit in? She's too sweet a kid for a raw deal. What are you going to do with this mess you've cooked up?"

ERIE PHYSICIAN IS SPEAKER AT LOCAL MEETING

Dr. Fred E. Ross, of Erie, specialist in children's diseases and on the staff of both Hamot and St. Vincent's Hospitals in that city, spoke before the Warren County Medical Society yesterday afternoon in the Conewango Club, taking for his theme "Premature Infants".

He said about 17 per cent of all births are premature and of this number a great many die in the first few weeks of life. He explained that many theories have been advanced for this high death rate, but the one that seems most plausible is that because the sweat glands in the skin and the skin itself is not fully adapted to the changed environment, there is not sufficient moisture in the air to bring about the proper balance in breathing.

Dr. Ross stated that experiments recently concluded show that a high degree of humidity, 65 per cent in an air conditioned room, will greatly lessen the death rate. As 85 per cent of the deaths are due to some respiratory trouble, he pointed out, establishment of this function is most important.

The speaker stressed some of the facts about the development of the human embryo and how the lungs of the unborn child are taking in and giving out a safety fluid continuously; that if lung cells are not fully developed, the normal moisture in the air must be increased for the newborn infant until it has adapted itself to the changed conditions. His talk was most interesting.

Thirty-four members attended and hosts for the dinner which followed the meeting were Doctors E S. Africa, E. R. Anderson, M. V. Ball, W. L. Ball and Harry Beals.

Henry Hudson first came upon the present site of Albany while seeking a route to China.

After a short address by Mr. Wroth, brief talks were given by N. K. Wendelboe, commander of the American Legion, and Homer Fitch, past commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"Patriotism" was the theme of a splendid talk given by J. R. Allen, department patriotic instructor of the V. F. W., and incidents leading up to the sinking of the Maine and the resultant Spanish-American War were emphasized in an address by H. D. Harris, principal of Beaty school.

At the conclusion of the program, Mr. Wroth pronounced the benediction.

BY TED MEIER

Philadelphia, Feb. 18—(AP)—Those reports that Joe Louis is slipping are premature.

The heavyweight champion demonstrated he still is a "killer" by knocking out Philadelphia's Gus Dorazio with one punch—a terrific right cross that landed flush on the "button"—in 1:30 of the second round of their scheduled 15-round title scrap at Convention Hall last night.

Philadelphia's largest indoor fight crowd—a total of 15,902 persons paying a gross of $57,552.62—saw Louis flatten Dorazio after Gus came out of a crouch and tried to land a left hook.

As Gus rushed in Louis stuck his own left smack into Dorazio's face. Gus, caught off balance, reeled back and for a second stood erect. In that brief second Louis had an opening and the Brown Bomber didn't miss.

He took one short step forward and let fly his lethal right. The punch didn't travel more than six inches, but it was enough. It landed on Dorazio's chin and everyone knew the fight was over. Dorazio fell flat on his face completely senseless.

The challenger was "out" so completely that in his dressing room later he kept mumbling "They shouldn't have stopped it." He thought Referee Irving Kitcher had intervened.

Dorazio made a fight of it during the first round, Bobbing and weaving, as he said he would, he landed a couple of blows to Louis' stomach and looked good once when Louis backed him into the ropes. His bobbing tactics made the champion miss several times and although Louis said later he had got in a "good uppercut" Dorazio weathered the storm apparently unhurt.

Between rounds Dorazio told his trainer, Jimmy Wilson, "Why this guy isn't so tough. He's a sucker for a hook. I'm going out and stiffen him."

Wilson counseled: "Better stay down for a few more rounds and see how things go."

"But then hte bell rang," Wilson explained later. "When I saw Gus stand erect I knew it was the end."

It was Louis' 14th defense of the heavyweight laurels he won four years ago from Jimmy Braddock. He left for New York after the fight and intends to start training about March 1 for his next title bout against Abe Simon in Detroit on March 21.

Louis weighed 203½ pounds to 193½ for Dorazio.

KIMBROUGH SIGNS PRO GRID CONTRACT

New York, Feb. 18—(AP)—John Kimbrough, All-America back from the Texas Aggies, yesterday signed a contract to play football for the New York football Yankees of the American League.

Jarrin' Jim actually signed two contracts—one for $12,500 to play football and another for $25,000 for personal services with Douglas G. Hertz, owner of the club.

Kimbrough received $2,500 as a down payment. He will get another $2,500 when he graduates. The remainder will be paid on a graduate basis.

There were no clauses pertaining to army service in the football contract. The personal contract with Hertz will be suspended should Kimbrough be called into service.

Kimbrough said he had been notified by the commandant at Texas A. & M. that deferment for one year had been granted because Kimbrough has two brothers dependent upon him.

Last Night's Bouts

TWO BIG GAMES ON NORTH LOOP SCHED TONIGHT

Two mighty important games are on tap tonight in the northern section of District Nine with both of the league leaders meeting strenuous opposition.

The Warren Dragons, defending champs, go to Johnsonburg where they will attempt to overpower the once-trimmed the Blue Jays, while the other top-rung occupant, Kane, takes on a formidable Bradford quint on the hilltop.

Should both Warren and Kane win, it is probable that the second half struggle will be settled on the hilltop court on February 25 when the two teams are scheduled to clash for the second time, and should bot teams lose, there will be a four-way tie for the lead, with Bradford and the Johnnies moving into the deadlock with the Wolves and the Dragons.

In most quarters, Warren and Bradford are favored, however, on the basis of past performance.

The Blue and White, squad, varsity and second team, left by automobile late this afternoon for Johnsonburg.

Oh, Mr. Kearns!

Did you get the same chuckle we did out of the list of referees who will work on Jack Kearns' first British Relief Fund show in Florida—Jack Dempsey, James J. Braddock, Gene Tunney and Mickey Walker? Yep, looks like a fat night for sweet charity—if this array is getting paid. . . . Sickest people in the East are the Boston sports writers who thought, said and wrote that Frank Leahy was all set at Boston College for another five years. At that, we think Mr. Leahy should issue a statement explaining just why he ran out on that fine contract Boston College gave him. Pardon us when we ask, when is a contract a contract? . . . SPORT SPATTERINGS

by BILL RICE

As you read this, your agent is en route to the Paper City, where he hopes to see the defending champions cut another notch in the handle by eliminating the Johnnies from further consideration in the title picture and cement their own chances for the second half toga. Should the Dragons win, it is probable that they will be roosting alone on the top perch, for the Owls are expected to bounce back from a drab performance Friday night and take it out on the undefeated Wolves. There is no question of Warren's superiority, but the Jays will have the advantage of being on their home court, and in the case of Johnsonburg this amounts to something. Warren is perfectly at home on a standard size hardwood, but the Johnsonburg floor can hardly be called a paradise, and the locals may take a little time to get acclimated. However, the basket is at the usual height from the floor and the opening is the same size, so all they'll have to do is pitch at it with their accustomed marksmanship.

The press reports regarding Honus Wagner's being ready to go on his 45th season in baseball state that the Flying Dutchman broke into organized baseball in 1895 and that his first contract was with Steubenville, O., in the old Tri-State League. Well, that's probably true, but most of his playing in this first year out of the semi-pro field was with this city's team in the Iron and Oil League. As Honus said when he spoke on "Honus Wagner Day" here in 1938, he got a little homesick at Steubenville and jumped to Warren, where his brother, Al, was playing second base. The Dutchman didn't have much trouble here and spent the rest of the season holding down the hot corner in an infield which was composed of his brother, Claude Ritchey at short, Russell at first and himself. It was the following year that he started his big campaign toward the majors and ended up with the Louisville Nationals on July 19, 1897.

Wagner will be 67 next Monday—the day the Bucs open their 1941 training season at San Bernadino, Calif., and the day the Pittsburgh coach begins his 39th year in the National League. "I still get on edge when training season gets close," says the ruddy-faced "Dutchman." "There's something in baseball that gets you—I dunno quite what. Like being a race horse, I guess. It gets in your blood and you run until you're done." As for youngsters just starting out in baseball, Wagner advises: "Practice hard while you're young. Eat moderately until the evening meal and go to bed early. Get an old baseball player—one who has been through the mill—to teach you a few things. Don't expect to be a star right off the reel. You have to work and develop yourself. While you practice, find the position you like best and play best—then stay there. Learn that fully and you're all right." He should have added: "And try to get you home town to get a place where you and the rest of the boys can play."

February 18, 1921—When Bob Martin meets Bill Brennan tonight, the A. E. F. heavyweight champion will be gunning for the right to meet Jack Dempsey. Martin is a huge man with a terrific punch and experts are picking him over Brennan.

February 18, 1931—Although Scalise scored 14 and Caldwell 13 points, the Jamestown High cagers came through with a 39-35 win over the Dragons. The Red and Green were ahead by one point at the end of the third quarter and scored eight in the final period.

Scholastic Passers Are Clearing Decks For P.I.A.A. Eliminations

Harrisburg, Feb. 18 (AP)—With a month and a half of action already under their belts, Pennsylvania's school boy basketball teams are gradually clearing the decks for the start of interdistrict P. I. A. A. eliminations exactly one month from today.

Another two weeks will see the end of the first phase of the annual statewide title competition — the crowning of sectional league champions—and the start of the second phase eliminations to determine titlists of each of the 12 P. I. A. A. districts. Then come the interdistrict eliminations, regional playoffs and the final championship contest between the eastern and western champions March 29.

Neither of the 1940 finalists Lebanon and Conemaugh—is likely to reach even the district eliminations this year. Conemaugh already has been ruled out as a result of using an ineligible football player last fall. Lebanon now ranks fourth in its sectional league with almost no chance of finishing on top.

Conemaugh would rank as top favorite for statewide honors, incidentally, if it were eligible. The Iron Horses have a veteran team that has won 12 straight and already has clinched its sectional league title. Franklin, virtually assured of second place, is expected to represent the league in the district playoffs.

Hazleton, Freeland, Bradford and Plymouth already have assured themselves of a chance for sectional league titles by winning first half honors in their circuits while several other teams, including Radnor, Luzerne, Gettysburg, Jersey Shore, Franklin and Shaw on, have built up apparently unsurmountable leads for their respective leagues. Ferndale is assured of the season's honors in the District Six tri-county league.

Current leaders across the state include:

District One Lower Merion Radnor, Coatesville, Ridley Township, Clifton Heights.

District Two—Old Forge, Sugar Notch, Wilkes-Barre G. A. R. and Meyers (tied); Luzerne, Freeland.

District Three - Gettysburg, Reading and Harrisburg William Penn (tied).

District Four Lewisburg, Mt. Carmel and Kulpmont (tied), Williamsport.

District Five- Somerset.

District Six -Huntingdon, Jersey Shore, Ferndale, Franklin, Altoona and Johnstown, playing independent schedules, may qualify for district playoffs.

District Seven - Aliquippa, Charleroi, Braddock, McKees Rocks, Coraopolis, Connellsville, Avalon.

District Eight Pittsburgh South and Pittsburgh Carrick and Allegheny (tied).

District Nine Brookville, Bradford, and Warren and Kane (tied).

District Ten Franklin and Sharon.

District 11 Hazleton and Allentown, Tremont.

District 12—Dalton and Clark's Summit.

MANY OF BASEBALL'S GREATS ARE ON HOLDOUT LIST AS MAJOR LOOP CLUBS PREPARE TO TREK TO CAMP

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—About this time of the year, baseball holdouts become official and the 1941 crop is impressive in quality and quantity.

Major league magnates always insist no player is a holdout until he fails to report for spring training. But, with camps opening right and left, they can't call their salary squabbles make believe much longer.

Principal players still unsigned include Joe DiMaggio, reported to who wants $18,500 from the Boston Red Sox; Harry Danning, who is asking the same sum from the N. Y. Giants; Johnny Mize, holding out for $17,500 from the St. Louis Cardinals; Ernie Lombardi, who wants something like that amount from the Cincinnati Reds; Rudy York, Angling for $15,000 from Detroit; and Mickey Owen, whose goal is $12,500 from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

However, these stars form only the upper crust. The Cardinals still are shy the signatures of 23 players. The Chicago Cubs have 13 houdouts; the Yankees, 14; the Giants, 11; the Reds, eight, and so on.

The cases of Owen and Danning, both catchers, are serious because their clubs already have begun training.

Danning, generally conceded to be the best backstop in the big leagues last year, reportedly was offered the same scale, $15,000. But he wants to get up into the class with teammates Mel Ott and Carl Hubbell.

Owen was acquired from the Cardinals in December, and the Dodgers reportedly offered him a raise, probably $1,000 over the $8,500 he made in St. Louis. But Owen declared he wanted a bigger raise and cited some of the other Brooklyn paychecks.

Lombardi still is haggling over whether a bonus he received a couple of years ago was a gift or a part of his salary. He considers it the latter and feels he took a cut last season, which he wants to get back. However he's mostly just an habitual late signer like Arky Vaughan of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who is expected to carry his contract to camp with him.

The Cubs' holdout siege is a matter of some consequences. Owner Phil Wrigley put a padlock on his money bags at the same time he hired a new general manager, Jim Gallagher, former sports writer. Some of the players really are sore about the cuts they're being asked to take. Stan Hack and Charley Root made trips from their homes in California to Chicago to talk over terms, and went back without signing.

The fact that the Cubs gave Dizzy Dean $10,000 again has been hard for some of his teammates to digest, also.

Cleveland has three holdouts Hal Trosky, Jeff and Roy Weatherly—for whom President Alva Bradley is unlikely to claim they are the highest-paid anything.

The Yankee malcontents include virtually every regular except Outfielder Charley Keller. Some of the stars seem sure to miss the start of training next week.

The big group of Cardinals still dissatisfied includes Don Padgett, Ernie Koy and several of the club's shining rookies, in addition to Mize, who wants to get into the price bracket left vacant when Joe Medwick was traded to Brooklyn.

Most of the other clubs are in ship shape.

certainly be considered a great success for those who have been working toward consolidation and mutual understanding in the Balkans."

Greek circles were said to have found a ray of encouragement in the fact that the Bulgarian-Turkish agreement was "without prejudice to their contracted engagements with other countries."

Diplomatic circles acknewledged that theoretically Turkey thereby left the door open to aid Greece, with whom she has a mutual assistance pact. They argued, however, that since Turkey did not move to aid Greece when Italy attacked her, there was small reason to believe the Turks would help Greece in the event of a Nazi invasion, unless Turkey's own borders were threatened.

The senate, returning at 11 a. m., received two bills which were passed finally by the house last night, providing $14,500,000 to finance relief in March, April and May. Current funds will be exhausted by March 5.

Democrats and Republicans in the senate got together to confirm without dissent B. Frank Morgal as a member of the public utility commission. Morgal was employed in the P. U. C. since 1917, and was raised to the commission by Governor James last year.

enabling the British to knock increasing numbers of raiders from the skies, despite the fact that a winter slowdown in Nazi raids has provided fewer targets.

The Air Ministry bulletin did not disclose details of the methods being used to find and stalk night raiders, however.

There were clouds and no moon last night.

The Home Security Ministry announced that 1,502 civilians were killed and 2,012 injured in air attacks on Britain during January, a drop of almost two-thirds from December, when 3,793 were killed and 5,044 were injured.

British and allied merchant shipping losses during the week ended Feb 9 were 13 ships, totaling 29,806 tons, the Admiralty reported.

Berlin, Feb. 18—(AP)—Nazi air raiders started explosions in an industrial section southeast of Hull, England, yesterday and fired an oil depot on Moray Firth, north Scotland, the German High Command said today.

Warehouses on the Shetland Islands were attacked and, in another assault a 4,000-ton ship was sunk, a communique said.

Last night, it declared, strong combat plane units dropped incendiaries and explosives on London and attacked harbor facilities and searchlight positions.

Informed sources said the raiders attacked Southampton, Yarmouth and Sheerness, but the communique did not mention these places.

The High Command said the British made no flights last night over Germany or German-occupied territory.

Minority Report Received

the bill would commit the country to support of any policy the president chose to put into effect.

Clark read an address to a well-filled senate as spectators in the crowded galleries looked on.

At one point in the minority report, Johnson said that he was informed that Great Britain had received 1,934 of the 2,884 military planes he said were produced in the United States in 1940.

Other foreign nations got 374 ships, the United States navy 192 and the army 384, Johnson said

"Certainly," he said, "these figures ought to please the advocates of this bill, if they contend it is a bill to aid Britain"

As the first speaker against the bill in the senate debate, Clark urged that there be no "name-calling" and that members give "faith and credence" to the arguments of those with whom they disagree

"If this bill is passed," he said "this may be among the last of the opportunities that we shall have to exercise that right."

Clark said he spoke "with authority" in assuring the senate that opponents had no "desire to unduly prolong the debate" and referred to the "brief few days" the discussion would occupy the chamber.

Proceeding then to "denounce and oppose" the bill, Clark noted that its title claimed the measure would "promote the defense of the United States."

It would do nothing of the kind, he contended.

Torazo and Syle were taken to hospitals.

Search for Donchez was begun after Syle told Policeman Joseph Haddon that he thought he had seen Donchez being taken away in an automobile. When a canvass of hospitals and physicians proved fruitless, police returned to the accident scene.

The stream in which Donchez was lying face down flows under the pike at that point, Chief Ottinger said it appeared that Donchez had crawled over a three-foot wall before falling down the embankment.

SUFFERS HEART ATTACK

The many local friends of Rev H. H. Barr, of Kane, former pastor of the Grace Methodist church here, will be sorry to learn that he suffered a serious heart attack following his Sunday morning service on February 9. He was taken to the Kane hospital but has been removed to his home.

FORMER RESIDENT HURT

Mrs. Paul Splitstone, of Oil City, wife of the former pastor of the Free Methodist church in Warren, is being treated in an Oil City hospital for injuries received in an automobile collision near Harlansburg. The car in which she was a passenger skidded on the slippery pavement and overturned in a ditch.

VETERAN DIES

Dr. Clark Stetson Bogart of Kane, A. E. F. veteran and physician, who had been incapacitated since 1919 from a malady caused by shell shock suffered during the war, died Sunday morning Commissioned a second lieutenant, Dr Bogart served 11 months with a British medical unit, participating in seven major military engagements in France He was twice cited for bravery under fire He is survived by his mother, Mrs. William Bogart. Cooks and Mess Sergeants Preparing for First Arrival

(From Page One)

The first men to arrive in camp since induction yesterday were 600 cooks and mess sergeants. They will attend a special cooking school and then draw the rations to be prepared for the first regiments arriving next Monday A mess sergeant, two cooks and two assistant cooks were selected from each regiment. All will attend a three-day cooks and bakers school under the direction of Captain Albert J. Youndt, and 30 men who have completed a three-months course at Fort Meade Md

Perhaps to the average housewife the task of the army cook is prodigious For instance all the units of the camp might be on a maneuver with dinner time (noon) indefinite.

The 13,000 men must be fed when they arrive, but the cooks know that the time this day, will be indefinite So they plan a boiled New England dinner. The total ration is astounding

Such a dinner, for 13,000 men would consist of:

6,500 pounds of smoked ham.
5,810 pounds of cabbage
6,000 pounds of potatoes (boiled with jackets on).

Garden salad composed of 2,300 heads of lettuce, 2,000 lbs of tomatoes 650 pounds of onions, 1,000 pounds of cucumbers all mixed with 35 gallons of mayonaise.

For desert there would be blackberry cobbler, whipped up from 1,600 pounds of lard 900 pounds of baking powder, 1,600 pounds of flour 130 pounds of cornstarch and 2,000 cans (ordinary No 2 size blackberries, sweetened with 1,000 pounds loaf sugar.

In addition there would be 1,800 cans of evaporated milk for the cobbler and the coffee (1,500 pounds) with this meal, be served 1,500 loaves of bread and 650 pounds of butter

In such quantities do the army cooks deal for only one meal and there are three wholesome meals a day It's a long way from "soupee soupee, soupee, come and get your beans"

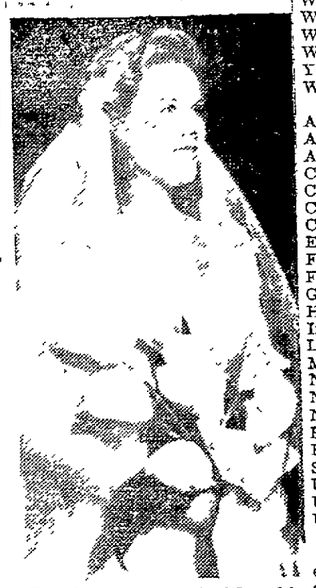
And the Bride Wore—Cotton



For her wedding in Memphis Alice Hall chose a bridal gown of sheer cotton Miniature cotton bolls caught her veil of cotton cloth to her blond hair. Her bouquet was of cotton calla lilies. If this keeps up southern farmers won't worry about war-hit cotton exports. Miss Hall was flying ambassador for the Memphis Cotton Carnival in 1939.

certainly be considered a great success for those who have been working toward consolidation and mutual understanding in the Balkans."

Greek circles were said to have found a ray of encouragement in the fact that the Bulgarian-Turkish agreement was "without prejudice to their contracted engagements with other countries."

Diplomatic circles acknewledged that theoretically Turkey thereby left the door open to aid Greece, with whom she has a mutual assistance pact. They argued, however, that since Turkey did not move to aid Greece when Italy attacked her, there was small reason to believe the Turks would help Greece in the event of a Nazi invasion, unless Turkey's own borders were threatened.

enabling the British to knock increasing numbers of raiders from the skies, despite the fact that a winter slowdown in Nazi raids has provided fewer targets.

The Air Ministry bulletin did not disclose details of the methods being used to find and stalk night raiders, however.

There were clouds and no moon last night.

The Home Security Ministry announced that 1,502 civilians were killed and 2,012 injured in air attacks on Britain during January, a drop of almost two-thirds from December, when 3,793 were killed and 5,044 were injured.

British and allied merchant shipping losses during the week ended Feb 9 were 13 ships, totaling 29,806 tons, the Admiralty reported.

Berlin, Feb. 18—(AP)—Nazi air raiders started explosions in an industrial section southeast of Hull, England, yesterday and fired an oil depot on Moray Firth, north Scotland, the German High Command said today.

Warehouses on the Shetland Islands were attacked and, in another assault a 4,000-ton ship was sunk, a communique said.

Last night, it declared, strong combat plane units dropped incendiaries and explosives on London and attacked harbor facilities and searchlight positions.

Informed sources said the raiders attacked Southampton, Yarmouth and Sheerness, but the communique did not mention these places.

The High Command said the British made no flights last night over Germany or German-occupied territory.

Minority Report Received

the bill would commit the country to support of any policy the president chose to put into effect.

Clark read an address to a well-filled senate as spectators in the crowded galleries looked on.

At one point in the minority report, Johnson said that he was informed that Great Britain had received 1,934 of the 2,884 military planes he said were produced in the United States in 1940.

Other foreign nations got 374 ships, the United States navy 192 and the army 384, Johnson said

"Certainly," he said, "these figures ought to please the advocates of this bill, if they contend it is a bill to aid Britain."

As the first speaker against the bill in the senate debate, Clark urged that there be no "name-calling" and that members give "faith and credence" to the arguments of those with whom they disagree.

"If this bill is passed," he said, "this may be among the last of the opportunities that we shall have to exercise that right."

Clark said he spoke "with authority" in assuring the senate that opponents had no "desire to unduly prolong the debate" and referred to the "brief few days" the discussion would occupy the chamber.

Proceeding then to "denounce and oppose" the bill, Clark noted that its title claimed the measure would "promote the defense of the United States."

It would do nothing of the kind, he contended.

Cooks and Mess Sergeants Preparing for First Arrival

(From Page One)

The first men to arrive in camp since induction yesterday were 600 cooks and mess sergeants They will attend a special cooking school and then draw the rations to be prepared for the first regiments arriving next Monday A mess sergeant, two cooks and two assistant cooks were selected from each regiment. All will attend a three-day cooks and bakers school under the direction of Captain Albert J. Youndt, and 30 men who have completed a three-months course at Fort Meade, Md

Perhaps to the average housewife the task of the army cook is prodigious For instance all the units of the camp might be on a maneuver with dinner time (noon) indefinite

The 13,000 men must be fed when they arrive, but the cooks know that the time this day will be indefinite. So they plan a boiled New England dinner The total ration is astounding

Such a dinner, for 13,000 men would consist of.

6,500 pounds of smoked ham.
5,810 pounds of cabbage.
6,000 pounds of potatoes (boiled with jackets on).

Garden salad composed of 2,300 heads of lettuce, 2,000 lbs. of tomatoes 650 pounds of onions, 1,000 pounds of cucumbers all mixed with 35 gallons of mayonaise.

For desert there would be blackberry cobbler, whipped up from 1,600 pounds of lard 900 pounds of baking powder, 1,600 pounds of flour 130 pounds of corn-starch, and 2,000 cans (ordinary No 2 size blackberries, sweetened with 1,000 pounds loaf sugar.

In addition there would be 1,800 cans of evaporated milk for the cobbler and the coffee (1,500 pounds) with this would be served 1,500 loaves of bread and 650 pounds of butter

In such quantities do the army cooks deal for only one meal and there are three wholesome meals a day It's a long way from "soupee soupee, coupee and get your beans."

American Legion Department Head To be Guest at Annual Washington Birthday Dinner-Dance on Friday

American Legion department officers of Pennsylvania will pay their annual visit to members of Chief Coraplanter Post, No. 135, here on Friday. This is the occasion of the annual Washington's Birthday dinner and dance, which has been sponsored by members of the local Legion post for the past 16 years.

Among the distinguished Legion and Auxiliary guests who will be in Warren that day are the following: Charles S. Cook, of Philadelphia, department commander; Daniel C. Hartbauer, of Pittsburgh, western vice commander and membership chairman; Maurice F. MacDonald, of Ridgway, district commander; Howard Bitner, of Latrobe, grand chef de gate, 40 and 8; Robert Russell, of Custer City, grand chef de train 40 and 8; Mrs. Arthur I. Beaver, of Dravosburg, department president of the Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. Harry Piper, of Altoona, department vice-president; Mrs. E. W. Ripple, of Hawthorne, western director, and Mrs. Russell Johnson, of Sheffield, Inter-County Council president.

Commander Cook will be the guest speaker at noon Friday at a combined meeting of local service clubs, to be held at the Carver Hotel at 12:15, with members of the Warren Kiwanis Club as hosts. Later Commander Cook will address an assembly at the Warren High School.

Friday's dinner will be held at the Y. W. C. A. at 6:30 p. m. Melvin G. Keller, a past commander of Chief Cornplanter Post, will act as toastmaster. Following the presentation of guests and talks by some of the department officers, there will be dancing from 10 until 1 o'clock, with Orrie Beebe's orchestra providing the music.

Following the dance, open house will be held at the Legion Home for all members of the Legion and their invited guests. At that time, members of the Legion will have an opportunity to meet the department commander in an informal manner and hear him discuss events of interest to the Legion at this particular time.

Past Commander Richard Hansen, in charge of ticket distribution, today reminded all members of the Legion particularly those who are selling tickets that the deadline for accepting reservations will be Thursday noon. He has called a meeting of his committee for tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Legion Home, when final plans will be made.

With problems of national defense uppermost in the minds of many ex-service men at this time and with enrollment of all Legion and former service members scheduled for Warren county on Friday and Saturday, the visit of Commander Cook is particularly timely, it was stated today.

He has been an active Legionnaire since 1920 and has served in many local and department offices of the organization in the past 21 years. One of his chief interests has been the Keystone Boys' Camp, which was established four years ago and is conducted by the Department of Pennsylvania each summer at Indiantown Gap.
